

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A display apparatus is constructed to make a plurality of light beams of mutually different colors incident to a display element and modulate the beams of the respective colors by the display element to form images of the respective colors. Purity of a predetermined color out of the colors is variable and a control pattern of the image display element is modified according to variation in the purity of the predetermined color.

008220" 520/2560